One machine is to slit mill rolls of non-woven material into large spools which meet customer specifications. Increasing the finished wound package size from the current machine size of 16" x 20" to the new machine size of 36" x 48" will give our customers longer material run times on their equipment and also will enhance our processing marketability.

The second machine will increase the finished package size from 24" OD to 30"-36" OD, thus meeting the needs of new and existing customers. This machine will feature electronic monitoring of the material processing stream, enabling us to handle a wider variety of material not currently possible.

The building addition will house the first machine mentioned above and provide warehousing for related material.
